Our assembly this week was about the birthday of Guru Nanak Dev Ji, the founder of the Sikh religion. Guru Nanak is very important to Sikhs, which is why they celebrate his birthday every year with great joy and enthusiasm. The message he gave is that everyone is created equal. Young or old. Rich or poor. Male or female. So we should all treat each other as equals.

Activities have now finished for the term. You will be sent information about booking activities for the Lent term in due course.

We are looking forward to welcoming parents to the Foundation and Year 2 Christmas performances next week. Here are the links to the details:

You will remember that I wrote to you earlier in the term to alert you to our policy of no photography or filming at these shows. We believe that it is far preferable for the audience and performers if there are no distractions. Recording devices inevitably break the magic of the occasion for other members of the audience, as they are necessarily held at a height where they disturb the view of others. I feel that watching the show through a screen rather than first hand, also dilutes the occasion considerably. In addition, as educators, we should aim to model good audience etiquette for the children. I would be grateful if you could inform any relatives who accompany you of the no photography or filming rule.
