

Accipiter the Wood Elf

There was only 60 when his home village was attacked by the orcs. The village's soldiers tried to stop their assault but their attempts were in vain. The orcs slaughtered everyone in their path women and children alike. Accipiter's parents told him to run far away from there and gave him a beautiful, handcrafted bow and a sheath of arrows as a final parting gift. He came back the next day to find the village destroyed and his parents dead, along with the rest of the elves in the village. From that day onwards he swore that he would slaughter all orcs with as much mercy as they showed his village. ter was only 60 when his home village was attacked by the orcs. The village's soldiers tried to stop their assault but their attempts were in vain. The orcs slaughtered everyone in their path women and children alike. Accipiter's parents told him to run far away from there and gave him a beautiful, handcrafted bow and a sheath of arrows as a final parting gift. He came back the next day to find the village destroyed and his parents dead, along with the rest of the elves in the village. From that day onwards he swore that he would slaughter all orcs with as much mercy as they showed his village.

Accipiter knows the woods inside out and has a very good knowledge of plants and herbal remedies. He has a keen eyesight and can spot danger from miles away and he can detect even the slightest movement from the corner of his eye. He is very skilled with a bow but when it comes to close ranged combat he fails to deliver. His skill in handy works allows him to craft beautiful arrows and sturdy shelters in minutes.

He is very patient when it comes to stalking his prey but loses his temper quickly when around other people and doesn't talk much, only when it is needed.

He has a long bone dagger crafted from the bones of an orc but though it is very sharp he tends not to use it in combat. He also has a small pouch on his waist where he stores useful herbs and remedies.